Carter stresses need to pass ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the proposed Equal Rights Amendment is at a crucial point and he urged everyone to press for its ratification.

"Equal rights for women are an inseparable part of human rights for all," Carter told leaders of thousands of women planning to march down Pennsylvania Avenue to emphasize their demands for equal rights.

When women tried a similar march 64 years ago, they were met with jeers and heckling. This time their leaders were invited to the White House for Carter's signing of a Women's Equality Day proclamation.

"This is a crucial point in the struggle to achieve full equality for women under the law," Carter told more than 100 women and men in a Rose Garden ceremony.

The proposed amendment has been approved by 35 states. It must win endorsement from 38 by early 1979 to become law. Three states have asked to rescind their ratification but this is subject to legal challenge.

Carter also announced he was ordering all federal agencies to re-examine their personnel policies and laws to root out discrimination against women. He noted that the Civil Rights Commission recently said that more than 3,000 government laws contain some discriminatory concepts that hurt women.

Virginia Allen, former deputy assistant secretary of state, asked Carter to lend his political force to the ERA battle.

She noted that the crusade against the ERA seems stalemated and said unless the amendment passes, not only women but men will be prevented full equality in coming generations.

Mrs. Allen asked Carter to visit the 15 states that have not ratified the ERA, to speak with state legislators "and to let them know why this nation needs the ERA," she said.

Carter made no agreement for such visits but did say that his daughter-in-law Judy Carter is in California right now working on a strategy to get the ERA passed in Western states.

He said the country still has a long way to go in assuring its women equality although he said it is not as dangerous to speak out for equal opportunity as it was in 1917 when Alice Paul and other suffragettes were jailed repeatedly and force fed in prisons as they campaigned for the vote.

The sole survivor of the suffragettes who followed Alice Paul in the daily vigils at the White House apparently is Hazel Hunkins Hallinan, 87, who came from London for the Women's Equality Day march and was at Carter's side at the Rose Garden ceremony.

On the eve of the march, 76 groups said they planned to send up to 50 persons each, many wearing white and carrying banners with the slogans that suffragettes hoisted while marching up Pennsylvania Avenue in marches in 1913 and 1917.

The ERA march is starting at the spot where the 1913 march was disrupted by hecklers and continuing to the White House. Then, across Pennsylvania Avenue, a rally is being held in Lafayette Park.

An antique trolley was provided for the frail suffragettes who marched decades ago, and at least one feminist mother, former White House counsel Barbara Kilberg, planned to pull her two young tots in a toy wagon.

Odessa Komer, vice president of the United Auto Workers, said the march was partly to "tell the President that as a man from the South, he certainly could pull in three more states."

She said the march is a reminder to Carter that thousands of women voted for him because of his pledge to do all he can to win ERA ratification.

"It's kicking off the last campaign of the ERA," said Eleanor Smeal, head of the National Organization for Women.

Local youngsters win plaudits for honesty

"I'm kind of proud of myself," said Danny Watring, 14, laughing as he summed up his feelings on finding a roll of money totaling $253 on the State Fairgrounds about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, which he turned over to the Highway Patrol.

Watring, 118 South Stewart, and three friends, Rhonda R. Riley, 3004 Southwest Blvd., Diane M. Wallen, 1410 South Warren, and Herby H. Bellmer, 2201 West Fifth, all 14, were on their way home after a day at the Fair Wednesday when they stopped for a drink at a water fountain and discovered a roll of bills lying on the ground.

"We didn't know what to do with it," Watring said. "We saw a concession stand across the road, but we didn't know the owner and didn't want to just hand it to him. He might have ripped us off," he said.

Thoughts of being ripped off were running through the mind of Jesse Summers, owner of the concession stand, Thursday morning when he discovered some $250, his stand's profits for the week, missing.

"I discovered this morning that the money was gone," said Summers, O'Fallon, Mo. "My first thought was that someone had stolen it. I told my partner, Pat Shallow, and he told me to report it, although we'd probably never get it back."

The result was a happy ending for everyone involved. Watring and his friends took the roll of bills to the Administration Building where a policeman told them to turn it into the Highway Patrol. According to Watring, the whole experience was "scary."

"The patrolman said that it was an unusual case and started taking out a bunch of papers. It was scary," he said.

When Summers got to the patrol office to report the missing money Thursday morning, Sgt. Roy Dallam was ready.

"About 11 a.m. Thursday this guy came in to report the theft of about $250 to $300," said Sgt. Dallam. "I asked him the denominations and he ran down what he thought he had, but the $2 bill was the clincher," he said, adding that the roll contained only one of the somewhat unusual bills.

According to Sgt. Dallam, if no one had claimed the money, it would have been returned to Watring and his friends.

"I think we ought to give some praise to these kids," said the sergeant, commending the youths' actions.

Summers is the first to agree. (Please see HONESTY, Page 4)

Fast thrills

Although the youth in front seems rather nonchalant about the whole thing, the girls behind him appear to enjoy the speed and thrills as they ride the "Himalaya" on the State Fair midway Friday morning.

Fair attendance this year is lagging about 4,000 behind last year's figure, but Fair officials are expecting a large weekend crowd.

Horseshoers, horsemen compete for Fair prizes

By RON JENNINGS
Staff Writer

It was a day for ringers and harness races Friday as the Show-Me Showcase entered its eighth day with a special salute to Fairgoers from Kansas City and St. Louis.

The clang of horseshoes colliding with iron stakes could be heard above the clamor of the carnival near where horseshoe pitchers from across the state competed for a total of $1,004 in cash prizes. The competition, which started Friday morning, will continue through Sunday. Men and women, boys and girls of all ages are pitching for prizes.

A total of 21,676 persons attended the Fair for Legislators' and Governor's Day Thursday, which was 89 more persons than last year's figure of 21,587. This year's running total attendance count for the first seven days of the Fair is 225,844. However, according to revised attendance figures released early Friday afternoon by the Fair press office, the comparable 1976 running total figure is 229,813. Thus, attendance for the first seven days of the 1977 Fair is 3,969 behind last year's figure. The Fair press room this week has inadvertently been receiving incorrect figures for last year's daily attendance totals.

One person interested in seeing as many of these people as possible isn't interested in trying to sell them anything, but in trying to sincerely help them. Robert R. Tyler, executive director of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, took his turn Friday manning an International Village booth sponsored by the State Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing.

Tyler, whose agency is under the auspices of this department, was passing out various publications dealing not only with his agency, but with other agencies under the consumer affairs, regulation and licensing umbrella. Among the brochures available at his desk are ones providing information on car and property insurance, answering questions of women's legal rights in Missouri, explaining how small claims courts work in the state and how to register complaints against utility companies.

"People from our agencies and the office have been here throughout the Fair because we want people to know what resources they have to improve their lives or register complaints," Tyler said. "One of our main problems is that not enough people know how we can help them."

Another state government figure on the Fairgrounds this week was Lt. Gov. William Phelps, who toured the grounds Thursday and greeted well-wishers at the Republican tent. Asked about the capital improvements bill currently before a special session of the Missouri General Assembly, Phelps said he believed the measure should have passed during the regular session. He blames what he called the hard-headedness of certain legislators for the delay.

Activities will continue on the Fairgrounds Friday night as stock car races take place in front of the grandstand and square dancing starts at 7:30 p.m. at the International Village. The square dancing will feature local caller Tom Cave. Special entertainment scheduled to wind up the final weekend of the Fair consists of two performances by Waylon Jennings and Jessi Colter at 6 and 9 p.m. Saturday.

In judging activity, Thursday's Hereford cattle show was brightened considerably by the appearance of 1977 Missouri Hereford Queen Charlene Selway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Selway, Williamstown. Miss Selway, a senior at Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville, is 21 years old and has been Hereford queen since this June. She was selected by the Missouri Junior Hereford Association, the Missouri Hereford Association and the American Hereford Association.

In FFA beef cattle judging, the senior champion Charolais was shown by Jane Clymer, Stella, and the reserve senior (Please see FAIR, Page 4)

Chicken BBQ contest no place for rookies, 'hack' discovers

EDITOR'S NOTE — Democrat-Capital wire editor Jack Schicht put his outdoor cooking talents on the line Thursday afternoon at the State Fair chicken barbecuing contest. The following is his account of how and why he finished out of the money.

I knew it was going to be a long afternoon when I accidentally kicked over my basting sauce.

Actually, my doom was sealed two nights before.

It all started a couple of months ago when I announced I had finally decided to take the plunge. I had signed up for the chicken barbecuing contest at the State Fair.

"I think it's cute," my wife replied with a smile when I told her my desire to win the $100 first-place prize money and trophy.

Cute. For years I had toiled 20 or more times each summer, enduring heat and rain to hone my culinary skills. For years I had worked on my "secret" sauce — a little more horseradish, a bit less brown sugar, etc. For years I had sought to create a harmonious relationship among kettle grill, charcoal and chicken. And all she could mutter was "it's cute."

"If it tastes anything like you cooked last weekend, you don't have a chance," a fellow worker chided, half jokingly but half matter-of-factly. True, the cut of beef I grilled last weekend wouldn't win any prizes. But I was cooking chicken Thursday and that's my speciality.

Jack Schicht...
...our man at the grill

I began preparing the sauce Tuesday night.

"Don't mess up the kitchen," my wife said.

"Come in here and taste this," I said about a half hour later.

"Tastes like French dressing," she said. A premonition of things to come.

Wednesday night I refined the sauce, cleaned the grill (first time in four years) and got the equipment in order. I was all set.

The official starting time was 2 p.m., the instructions on the entry blank noted, although it is permissible to begin cooking before that time. The game plan was to get to the Fairgrounds by 1:30, light the charcoal by 1:45 and begin cooking by 2:15. That would give me a couple hours before the chicken had to be on the judges' table by the 4:15 deadline. Plenty of time.

It was not a good game plan.

I pulled the car through Gate 5 into the Show-Me Arena area near the Sheep Pavilion, about 10 minutes behind schedule.

I parked the car and walked over to the cooking area.

It hit me like a bucket of ice water. There, inside the Show-Me Arena, in horseshoe fashion, were my 24 competitors — all already cooking their chicken!

These were no backyard hacks. These were seasoned veterans of State Fair barbecuing contests with cooking contraptions of all shapes and sizes.

There, right in front of me, was

Story is cited to explain spreading movement

NEW YORK (AP)—A man was carrying a heavy load of rocks up a steep hill on a hot day, sweating and stumbling under the weight. A bystander asked if he might add still another stone to the load, and the burdened man blurted an angry refusal.

Later, another man was carrying an equally heavy sack of diamonds up the same steep hill, but he bore it happily, whistling a tune. A bystander asked if he might add still another diamond to the precious cargo, and the man welcomed it with a smile.

The story is one of the great, old tales of Hassidic Judaism that points to a truth, and in this case, it was used by Rabbi Samuel M. Butman to explain how the Hassidim bear the heavy regimen of their detailed, exacting Jewish orthodoxy, yet do it gladly and with verve.

"If Judaism is just a rigorous burden, it means agony, but if it's a diamond, adherence to its law is beautiful and joyous—it's happiness," he said in an interview, citing the movement's lively and spreading tactics to revive traditional Jewish practices.

In regard to the 613 commandments of the Torah, the first five books of the Bible, he said the Hassidim "go beyond the call of duty. They do more than duty requires, and do it with more spirit, energy and enthusiasm. That's why singing and dancing plays such an important role in Hassidic life."

Rabbi Butman, 34, director of the youth organization of the Lubavitch movement, the major branch of the ultra-orthodox Hassidim that originated in eastern Europe two centuries ago, says the youth group's "Mitzvah Mobiles" have now fanned out across this country, and also abroad.

"It's a growing operation," he said.

Sometimes called "synagogues on wheels" or "tanks against assimilation," the traveling teaching units were introduced in New York in 1974 to stimulate wider Jewish observance of "mitzvot" (Scriptural commandments).

From a single van tried at the start, the strategy now has been expanded to a fleet of more than 100 brightly painted, modern camper units operating in a dozen cities across the nation. Many other units also are operating in Europe, South America, Australia, South Africa and Israel.

The Lubavitcher Hassidim number about 500,000 worldwide of whom about 20,000 live in Brooklyn, site of the movement's international headquarters, headed by Rabbi Menachem M. Schneerson, recently turned 75. Hassidic men never shave.

Bell employee notes affair she carried on with Gravitt

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. employee says she carried on an affair with the company's top Texas executive until his suicide in 1974.

Verna Taylor, a $22,000-a-year Bell employee in Lubbock, said she met T. O. Gravitt at a business meeting in Lubbock and later spent the night with him in motels in Midland, Corpus Christi and Austin.

Gravitt killed himself Oct. 17, 1974, at his home in Dallas during an internal investigation which Bell officials say was touched off by rumors of sexual irregularities among San Antonio-area employees.

Mrs. Taylor, a tall blond, told of her relationship with Gravitt during testimony Thursday in a $29 million damage suit filed against Southwestern Bell by the Gravitt family and fired Bell executive James Ashley of San Antonio.

The suit claims the nature of the probe drove Gravitt to suicide and resulted in the wrongful firing of Ashley. It claims the questions asked by the company destroyed the reputations of both men.

Mrs. Taylor was one of six women sent to the witness stand to testify for Bell before a packed audience in the state district courtroom.

The company, which began its defense Wednesday, is trying to show the basis for its investigation, which led to Ashley's suspension from his $55,000-a-year job Oct. 9, 1974. He was fired 22 days later, after Gravitt's death.

Bell claims Gravitt was never a target of the probe.

Some of the women testified that Ashley had a reputation among female Bell employees as a "party man" and "dirty old man."

There was extensive testimony from three women who said they attended, at Ashley's request, a three-day party at a San Antonio hotel at which there was music, liquor, dancing and sex.

Bell contends Ashley organized the party.

One woman said she had sex with Ashley on numerous occasions because if she didn't "I would get on his s---list." To be on the list meant no chance for promotions in the company, she said.

Oleta Gravitt Dixon, who was Gravitt's widow and is a plaintiff in the suit, stared blankly at most of the women during their testimony. Ashley occasionally sighed.

The trial, which began Aug. 8, was recessed until Monday because of a conflict in the schedule of Judge Peter Michael Curry. The plaintiffs rested their case Tuesday.

Too white

Secret Service agents arrested a San Francisco man and recovered almost a half-million dollars in counterfeit $20 bills in his apartment recently. Agent Kenneth Iacovoni displays the phony bills, two of which turned up in San Francisco stores earlier in the month. Agents said the bills were too white. "Real bills are creamy, off-white."

Police panel makes no move on suspension

An 11-year veteran of the Sedalia police department has until 2 p.m. Satur- day to appeal a 15-day suspension from duty without pay to the Police Personnel Board.

Jack Erwin began the 15-day suspen- sion at 2 p.m. Monday as directed by Police Chief William E. Miller. The suspension was based on a recommenda- tion by the department's internal affair committee, which left the length of the suspension to Chief Miller.

The committee also stipulated that Er- win be placed under close supervision for six months following his return to duty and that his conduct should be evaluated at the end of that time.

Erwin's suspension was the result of his striking a handcuffed female prisoner, which he admitted to the com- mittee, after arresting her July 20 on charges of driving while intoxicated. Er- win admitted striking Kathy Barnes, but claimed she broke his glasses and struck him first, according to reports.

Erwin appealed the suspension to the department's grievance committee at 6 p.m. Monday and the committee met with Miller Thursday evening. Miller said Friday the suspension was not altered by that meeting and Erwin now has until 2 p.m. Saturday or five days after it became effective to appeal the suspension to the Police Personnel Board.

Prison escapees remain free only for a short time

BOONVILLE — Three prisoners who escaped from the Cooper County jail here Friday morning were recaptured about an hour later, according to Sheriff Sam Morris.

Allen Thuman, 32, Goodhue, Minn., Chris Cowans, 18, Boonville, and Robert Vinyard, 19, Boonville, escaped from the jail about 6:40 a.m. Friday. Morris said the trio took apart the lock on their jail cell during the night and overpowered the jailer who went into the cell area to check on them.

All three were recaptured in a wooded area near the Kemper Military Academy here shortly after 7:30 a.m. The capture scene is located about 1½ miles from the jail, Morris said.

Felony jail escape charges will be filed against the trio, Morris said. Thuman was being held on auto theft and parole violation charges. Cowans was charged with burglary and escaping from the Boonville city jail. Vinyard faces burglary charges.

Cowans will be transferred to the Pet- tis County jail, Morris said, because of his escape risk classification.

Sedalian is given 15-year jail term

WARRENSBURG — A rural Sedalia youth was sentenced to 15 years in prison Thursday by Johnson County Circuit Judge Robert Russell in connection with the Jan. 25 armed robbery of a Chilhowee grocery store.

Timothy Lee Greene, 17, Route 1, Sedalia, and Michael Franklin Reedy, 20, Knob Noster, were charged with robbing the store at knifepoint. Johnson County Sheriff Paul Pirch apprehended Greene and Reedy and recovered $529 taken from the store shortly after the robbery between Centerview and Chilhowee.

Reedy was given a 10-year suspended sentence and placed on probation for five years on Wednesday.

Billfold and cash taken from woman

The theft of a billfold containing $30 and personal papers from Mary P. Rhea, 74, 406 North Prospect, is being in- vestigated by Sedalia police.

Mrs. Rhea told police two juveniles entered the Open Door Service Center at 115 West Main about 3:50 p.m. Thursday and one took her billfold from behind a counter while the other distracted her.

In other police news, George Blevins, 1415½ South Moniteau, reported a military ammunition box and tools, col- lectively valued at $70, were taken from his home sometime during the past two weeks. Police reported there are two suspects in that case.

Honesty

"It hurts when you lose that much. I didn't think there were that many honest people around. I called Dan- ny this morning and thanked him and told him I'd give them a little reward if they came out," Summers said.

Summers said he offered them $5 apiece or some souvenirs from his stand. As for Watring and his friends, they're planning to take Summers up on his offer.

"We're going back out to the Fair tonight or in the morning," Watring said.

Plans for buying local TV station stay active

Because of a $37,000 payment approved Thursday by the Central Missouri State University Board of Regents, the univer- sity's application for federal matching funds to purchase Sedalia's KMOS-TV station is still alive.

The application was threatened earlier last week when college officials learned that CMSU was $74,000 short of meeting its required $148,000 share of the $592,000 purchase price. The $148,000 is one-fourth of the total cost, with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) scheduled to pay the remaining $444,000 if the project is approved.

The university hopes to purchase the station from Mid-America Television. Kansas City, which owns KMOS-TV and its sister station KRCG-TV, Jefferson City. Under the proposed sale, program- ming for the local station by CMSU will be educational during the day and be switched to the Public Broadcasting System in the evening. The station would be entirely non-commercial and would provide some local programming.

The university was permitted to meet its share of the total purchase cost by both cash and "in-kind" contributions in the form of various equipment. Based on a preliminary inspection of the equip- ment that Mid-America Television has agreed to donate to the university, of- ficials believed the $148,000 obligation could be met.

☆ Chicken BBQ

bearded Donald Held of Morrison, Mo., last year's champ. With beer in hand he tended a homemade smoker-barrel ar- rangement that produced an aroma one step this side of heaven.

And at the far end stood Forrest M. Wallace of Jefferson City, who certainly had the most unique cooker. He fashioned his barbecuer out of an old refrigerator.

On the other side was John Renn of Holt's Summit, who was doing his cook- ing in a metal trash can. That's right, an ordinary outside trash can, but rigged with doors and air vents.

The superintendent of the contest, Glenn Geiger of the poultry department at the University of Missouri, got on the microphone and gave a rundown of all the contestants. Surprisingly, I was the only one from Sedalia.

At 1:55 I got my charcoal going. A few minutes later contestant Robert Baldwin of Jefferson City wandered over.

"You got me worried," he said. "Why's that?" I replied.

"Well," he said, "you're starting so late. The rest of us have had our chicken on for some time already and you're just getting your coals lit now."

"It's all part of my game plan," I said confidently. "You guys will all be burned out by the time 4:15 rolls around."

He walked away still worried. I had buffaloed him but would my chicken bu- falo the judges?

With lots of fanning with a styrofoam cooler lid, the coals were ready by 2:20. They were a little hot so I watered them down a bit with my Worcestershire sauce-sweet vermouth-cooking sherry- lemon juice basting mixture.

The chickens were supplied by the Fair and the MU Extension Division, co- sponsors of the contest. Each entrant had to barbecue three halves.

I put the chicken on about 2:25 and set- tled back in my lawn chair to sip a beer. It was hot under the sun. Many of the veteran amateur chefs were cool, though, under their portable canopies. Most of the contestants were drinking beer, it seemed.

Plenty of basting sauce kept the chickens from burning above the still- too-hot coals. It was now 2:45 and all was going fairly well.

Then, it happened. As I was walking to a trash can (a real one) with my empty beer bottle, I kicked my basting sauce. All over the ground. The late start, and now this — that's two strikes against me, I thought.

All was not lost, though. Luckily, I brought a gallon of water with me. I mixed some of my finishing sauce with the water and this provided an adequate basting sauce, though not as good as the one that had spilled.

Throughout the competition spectators milled with the contestants. By the looks in their eyes I could see they were not im- pressed with my cooking talents. Most were flocking around Held, Wallace and Renn.

At 3:30 M. C. Kennon of Farmington decided his chicken had had enough.

"I thought we had to wait to 4:15," I said.

"Nope," he replied. "You can submit it any time before."

That considerably changed my game plan. If I waited till 4:15 my chicken would arrive at the judges' table with a dozen other contestants'. By that time, I thought, the judges' taste buds would be chickened-out.

After Kennon broke the ice, eight or nine others followed. The judges, both consumer specialists with the Extension Division, were sampling the fowls and assigning point values. Out of a possible 100 points, 10 were awarded for skill in

However, the college was notified last week that HEW inspectors had reduced the official value of some of the equip- ment largely because it is no longer be- ing manufactured and some replacement parts are not available. Also, some of the equipment was judged not to have a necessary 10-year future life expectancy.

Carl Foster, CMSU director of public relations, explained the college's reason for valuing the equipment as it did by saying, "Our criteria was whether or not it was useful and functional. This equip- ment we are talking about is definitely all functional and very useful. Mid-America will not be giving us bad equipment. We are getting two color cameras and other good equipment from both the Sedalia and Jefferson City stations. It's just that HEW inspectors used very precise evaluation guidelines."

After being informed of the HEW deci- sion by the university, Mid-America of- ficials then offered to pay half the re- maining $74,000 providing CMSU came up with the other half. The action by the Board of Regents Thursday assures that the college's one-fourth in matching pay- ment can be made if HEW agrees to help fund the purchase.

Foster said he does not know when HEW officials will announce a decision on the university's request.

Down-home comedy, tunes delight crowds

By DAN POTTER
Staff Writer

It was a country-powered evening of entertainment all the way from the melodic and sometimes surging songs of LeRoy Van Dyke and Susan Haney to the down-home comedy of Jerry Clower for Fairgoers in the grandstands Thursday night.

About 3,000 people turned out for both the 6 and 9 p.m. performances.

Surprisingly, the Mackinaw Music Show, the three-man, two-woman group that plays all over the Fairgrounds, drew as much applause as any of the stars headlining the show.

The group even had a delight for children interspersed in their warm-up show of mainly country tunes. Macky Mouse, Freddy the Frog and Super Chicken, three animal characters, drew the wide-eyed surprise of hundreds of children in the audience.

Van Dyke, one of Sedalia's own, delighted the crowd with his stadium-filling, rich voice crooning out such favorites as "San Antonio Rose" and his own song "The Auctioneer," one of the million plus sellers in country music today.

Van Dyke told Sedalians, "It's good to be back home again." The honesty of his sentiment was evident in his handshakes with old friends near the stage and a visit with his parents behind the stage.

Miss Haney, a petite dark-haired beauty, packed energy into such favorites as "Louisiana Man" and "I Saw the Light," which brought clapping and foot stomping accompaniment from the grandstands.

At least one middle-aged, balding man drew a jab from his wife, after Miss Haney traded smiles with the woman's husband as he sat on his track seat just in front of the stage.

Miss Haney went from the snappy "Louisiana Man" into a pleasing rendition of "Let Me Be There." Then she sang "I'm Not Lisa," a song sure to be heard from Jessi Colter Saturday night.

Miss Haney left the stage after singing "I Saw the Light," and then Van Dyke returned to sing a few more

Jerry Clower...country comedy salesman tunes, ending with the audience favorite, "The Auctioneer."

But before Van Dyke and Miss Haney performed, Fairgoers roared with laughter to the country comedy of a man just seen prior to Thursday night by Sedalians on lumber yard television commercials and numerous television shows.

With his now famous "Woowo, Woowo," Clower burst onto the stage dressed in a red tuxedo and white-dyed, lizard skin boots.

Clower told the audience there was a story behind those boots. A woman once criticized him for wearing them, he joked, because lizards had to be killed to make the boots.

"I had to fight off buzzards for them after a bus ran over the lizards," Clower told the laughing audience.

But to show what kind of a woman his critic was, said Clower, she walked past him later wearing a fur around her shoulders.

"Well, I had to sit there praying, Lord don't let me whop this woman," he didn't, but it was not easy, he said.

In his late show performance Clower chided many of the state legislators in the audience by comparing his native Mississippi with Missouri. "One thing we do have is plenty of room for prisoners," he joked.

Backstage between performances, Clower told The Democrat-Capital he had "backed into" the entertainment world by telling stories at fertilizer conventions, an industry for which he sold products for several years.

Somebody made a tape of him at a convention in 1971 and boom, two months later he had a best-selling, country-western tape.

Between kissing children, chewing tobacco and signing autographs Clower said, "The reason I've been so successful is because I've paid attention to the funny things in life."

"My jokes are all based on people I knew or experiences I had. Sure, I have embellished them," he admitted, "but life is funny."

Clower said, understandably so, that he did not regret going from a job paying $17,000 yearly to the comedy life that pays him $500,000.

"But you know, people make life more complicated than it really is. I was a No. 1 fertilizer salesman and now I'm the No. 1 country comedian," he bragged a little.

"People just need to find a job that they are happy with. If you are happy at hauling garbage in Sedalia, Mo., then you are a success," he philosophized.

Does medicine affect sperm?

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband has inner ear problems. The doctor has diagnosed it as Meniere's disease. He is on Antivert and Hygroton.

We would like to know if the medicine he is taking would have any effect on him because we would like to have another baby. Does this medicine have any effect on the sperm?

Dear Reader — That is a good question. There is surprisingly little information on the effects of various medicines on men as potential fathers. There is quite a bit more information on women. There is nothing to indicate either medicine would have any adverse effect in this regard on your husband.

Antivert should NOT be used by a woman who is pregnant or who may become pregnant. It has been shown to cause birth defects in pregnant rats. Several of the antihistamines such as Antivert that are used to prevent motion sickness or dizziness should not be used in these women. The changes, if any, would occur during the development process and there are no studies that implicate the use of such medications in men as a factor in birth defects.

Hygroton is a diuretic used to flush out salt and water. Diuretics should not be used in pregnant women unless there is a good medical indication. The drug does pass through the placenta and affects the baby. This may not be as a birth defect but rather as a disturbance in chemical balance, jaundice of the baby and possibly some changes in blood clotting mechanisms.

Diuretics also appear in the mother's milk. A nursing mother should not take diuretics. If she has to take them for a medical reason she should stop nursing the baby.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband has congestive heart failure due to a leaky valve. He is under the care of an excellent physician who has him on a low sodium diet and medicines.

Occasionally he becomes short of breath due to overexertion. Would you please explain what takes place to him physically when this happens?

Dear Reader — Normally the left side of the heart fails first. The leaky valve you speak of is no doubt in the left side of his heart.

When the heart is called upon to work harder than it can it fails to pump enough blood through the left side of the heart and the blood backs up in the lungs.

The excess blood in the lungs causes fluid to leak out of the small blood vessels into the tiny air sacs of the lungs. As the air sacs fill with fluid the lungs are no longer efficient in exchanging air. The person becomes breathless. Sometimes this is almost like an asthmatic response giving rise to the medical term, "cardiac asthma."

Mother seeks $2.25 million from city to support child

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five-day-old Isis Sarai's father was shot to death by a police officer before she was born. Her mother is asking the city for $2.25 million to pay for the child's upbringing.

Ronald Burkholder, a 35-year-old biochemist and the common-law husband of Maria Herbst, was shot to death on the sidewalk outside his laboratory Aug. 4, just 17 days before his daughter was born.

Some of the facts surrounding the shooting are in dispute, but two things are clear: He was shot six times and he was naked at the time.

"We plan to make the city of Los Angeles and the police pay for the upbringing of this child," attorney Stanley Arnold, who represents Miss Herbst, said in filing the claim Thursday.

He said he would file formal lawsuits if the city does not respond to the claim, which asks $1 million for Miss Herbst and $1.25 million for the baby.

Sgt. Kurt Barz, a 10-year veteran of the police force, claimed that he fired in self-defense after Burkholder had assumed a "martial arts" stance and "lunged" at him. Barz was removed from field duty pending an investigation.

Burkholder's friends challenged Barz' account, saying Burkholder was a proponent of nonviolence and was not trained in martial arts. Toxicology tests showed no evidence that Burkholder had been taking any drugs that would have caused him to act in an unusual manner.

Miss Herbst's attorney said an autopsy showed a 4½-inch-deep wound in Burkholder's shoulder. He speculated that Burkholder may have wounded himself in the lab and run outside unclothed, seeking help.

Broken glass from lab instruments and a candelabra were found inside the lab, and a trail of blood led to the outside phone Burkholder regularly used, Arnold said. He said bloodied clothing which the biochemist may have shed after the accident was also found.

Burkholder was the 27th person killed by city police so far this year, three fewer than the total killed in either 1975 or 1976. Police officials are at a loss to explain the increase.

Why such madness on canal treaty?

Rowan

Memories of a debacle in Southeast Asia have not died away — mostly because the young men who fought and suffered there are still screaming about how this society has betrayed them — yet a bunch of old men now want to send the

Why is it the old men — the octogenarians of Congress, the white-haired jingoists of a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention, the geriatric gallants of the American Legion — who throw out macho talk about going to war to retain U.S. control over the canal?

WASHINGTON — I watch the escalation of anger and emotionalism in the debate over the Panama Canal and I ask myself: Why? Why? Why?

Why would anyone want to fight to retain a canal that we could never defend against sabotage when we can have complete access to that same canal under secure circumstances by merely signing a treaty under which we treat the Panamanian people as equals? Why?

It seems that these old soldiers of the VFW and the Legion never die; they just bore the rest of us to death trying to prove what heroic patriots they are.

Why would Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., leader of the anti-treaty forces, slander members of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff by dismissing their support for the new treaties with the comment: "They would be forced to, or they would ruin their careers."

Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, the Army

chief of staff, went before the VFW with a powerfully logical statement that the canal is of importance to U.S. security, and that the military is convinced that the U.S. and the canal will be more secure if we "deal with the realities of today's world and not be deluded by myths or emotional non-issues."

Gen. David C. Jones, the Air Force chief of staff, told President Carter that the nation's military leaders were grateful to Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz "for negotiating a treaty that the Joint Chiefs can fully support."

Why won't Thurmond, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and other treaty foes at least give these men credit for integrity?

Why won't they acknowledge that our admirals and generals could simply remain silent — but that Rogers, Jones, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Gen.

George Brown, are also patriots who would never campaign aggressively for treaties that they felt, even in their secret hearts, would endanger the security of the U.S.?

Why, something keeps asking me, does the American Conservative Union say that it will concentrate on the South in trying to drum up opposition to the treaties? Why is the opposition led by the old pro-segregation Dixiecrat Thurmond, and by Helms, who has voted against just about every proposal for racial, social or economic justice to come up in the Senate?

Could it be that a large measure of racism underlies this debate over the Panama Canal?

Why is no one talking about the years in which we gave U.S. workers in the Canal Zone the best jobs and paid them in gold, and gave Panamanians the worst jobs and paid them in silver — then put gold signs over toilets, water fountains, post office windows to show that these were for "whites only," and silver signs over facilities that were for "Panamanians only"?

Why has no one said anything about the fact that long after we abandoned "the gold and silver standards," economic and racial discrimination remained rampant in the Canal Zone? Even now tempers of Zionians flare over efforts to integrate schools and wipe out housing discrimination.

Why would Thurmond and Co. think that we want to send our sons to fight a needless war to defend this kind of madness?

Why?

The Skelton poll

Most Missourians in the Fourth District feel the energy crisis is fairly serious, that the U.S. is too dependent on foreign oil, and that things will get worse this winter, fuel-wise.

These are some of the findings of a phone survey conducted by Rep. Ike Skelton. Three hundred people were polled in the congressman's district.

While these and other findings of Skelton's poll are interesting, we don't think it went far enough. The entire Carter energy program is built on the premise that only government can lick the energy crisis. This is the rationale for an unprecedented extension of federal control into the entire energy field, creating what former Treasury Secretary William Simon calls an "energy police state." Are Missourians ready for this? We wish they had been asked.

Rep. Skelton, who voted for it, calls the Carter energy package "the first step toward achieving independence from national energy worries." We think it is just the opposite: The combination of high taxes and low production incentives will make the problem worse.

Eventually Americans may wake up to the fact that they cannot continue to reap the benefits of a free-market system and expect the energy industry to operate outside that system.

Foster Scotten

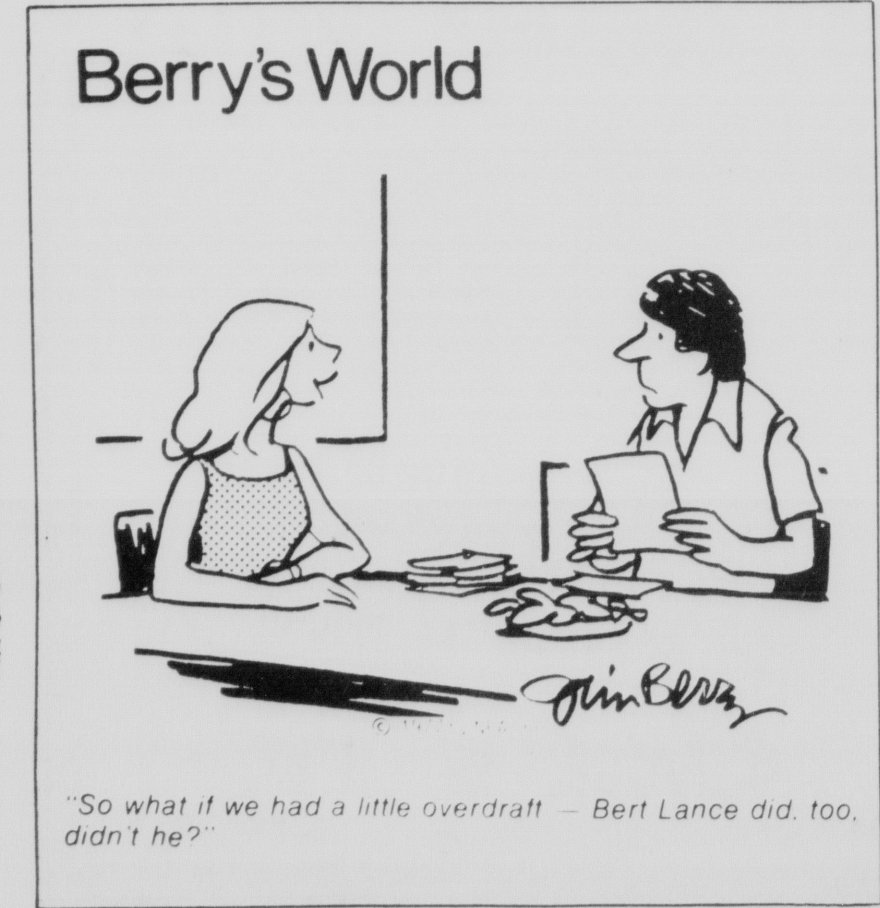

Educator, administrator, writer, gentleman, friend — and, yes, in his quiet, effective way — politician, it would take these words of description to characterize Dr. Clyde Foster Scotten, who died Tuesday after a full life of 83 years.

By many, Foster Scotten will be remembered for his 40 years of service to Pettis County as its superintendent of schools, and for his mild-mannered method of achieving improvements as the chief administrator of the then-extensive county school program. He was recognized throughout the state as an able and effective educator, and certainly he was highly regarded here at home, for in election after election he was returned to office.

Following his retirement in 1967, Mr. Scotten embarked on probably his last fine achievement, the writing of the History of the Schools of Pettis County. This 173-page book, published in 1974, leaves a splendid and accurate record of the schools, the teachers, and accomplishments of some of the pupils in a well-written report that will be cherished as a factual reference for years to come.

The community will miss this native son, who was born near Green Ridge and was one of 17 children born to the late Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Scotten. He left his mark in the hearts and minds of many people.

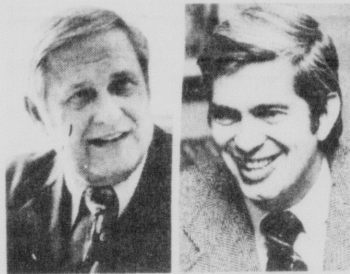

"So what if we had a little overdraft — Bert Lance did, too, didn't he?"

Merry-go-round

Death to dissidents?
It's up to the U.S.

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department is quietly trying to deport two Soviet dissidents back to Russia, where they face almost certain execution.

Lithuanian freedom fighter Pranas Brazinskas was tortured for years in Soviet prisons before he escaped and hijacked a plane to Turkey in October 1970. He and his son eventually made their way to the United States, which has no extradition treaty with the Soviet Union.

Yet the United States is apparently bowing to Soviet demands and may soon return the courageous father and son, even though a State Department official admits it is "quite possible" they will be killed.

Brazinskas' tale of suffering for his once-independent homeland is vividly described in a 50-page personal statement. He became a dissident on his 17th birthday in 1940, when a "motor truck filled with armed Soviet soldiers" stormed into his Lithuanian village and "drove out all the inhabitants from their homes to vote" for Soviet rule.

Within a month, he wrote in imperfect English, his life of terror and hiding began. "Through one devastating night," Brazinskas recalls, Soviet soldiers apprehended 35,000 Lithuanians, including women, children and the elderly, and herded them into concentration camps.

But Brazinskas escaped under the cover of darkness, firing his shotgun at the pursuing secret police agents. He lived in the woods for four years, fighting both Russians and Nazis, until he caught pneumonia and was arrested along with his pregnant wife.

The Lithuanian first experienced Soviet torture in the notorious underground chambers of Liublianka prison. "They struck me by their fists, rubber sticks, loose chair-legs," he writes. They also used their "special tool," a "flat long ruler to which hundreds of needles are attached, which by deeply piercing into the body causes unbelievable suffering and hemorrhage."

"The most horrible," Brazinskas recalls, "were those seven days of cupboard coffin, where I had to stand, and where it was impossible to lie down or sit...My arms were broken and cuffed from behind to my spine."

Brazinskas was later exiled to Siberia. He worked 16 hours a day, subsisted on a daily diet of 300 grams of bread and slept with another prisoner on two wooden boards. In three years he was allowed only three baths.

He escaped during an uprising by the Siberian soldiers and found his wife and the daughter he had never seen. The Lithuanian resistance movement went underground during the 1950s. Brazinskas became a high official in the dissident network, led sabotage operations against a Soviet electrical plant and organized a labor strike. However, he was arrested again in 1963 and sent to Vilnius prison.

When the usual torture methods failed to force Brazinskas to divulge information about the underground, a technique called "knovejar" was applied. "Two 'body mechanics' suddenly caught my arms from behind and, by breaking them at the spine, they placed me into automatic chains."

They held his head under water and threatened to drown him; they thrust hot needles under his fingernails and burned the soles of his feet with electric current. "But I just repeated the same words of my destiny," Brazinskas writes. "I do not know! I do not know anything! Even in my sleep I repeated the same words."

The Soviets freed Brazinskas in 1967, but re-arrested him when he failed to lead them to underground leaders. He finally escaped again from a concentration camp. The underground arranged for him to hijack a Soviet jet from Batum to Turkey. He took his 14-year-old son and left behind his wife and older daughter. A stewardess was killed and a pilot wounded as they exchanged fire with KGB agents.

The father and son spent five years in Turkish prison before an official arranged their escape to prevent their extradition to the Soviet Union.

Now the brave pair are fighting U.S. deportation on the grounds that they would face "political persecution" in the Soviet Union. Rep. Robert Dornan, D-Calif., is trying to win immigration rights for them.

But the Justice Department regards the father and son as ordinary criminals and has already ordered the son's deportation. Informed sources have told us that an order for the father's deportation is imminent.

DELAY OF GAME — Last fall, a high school baseball coach in Arizona was trying to repair an automatic pitching machine used for batting practice. He had disconnected the machine, but the cocked pitching arm suddenly spun forward and struck his head. He suffered massive brain damage.

The tragic accident was reported to the Consumer Product Safety Commission last November. The agency was later told of several other injuries, including brain concussions, severe lacerations and facial disfigurement. Yet, according to files marked "restricted," the commission did nothing until February, and its belated investigation dragged on for months.

In July, the commission finally filed suit to immediately halt the sale and distribution of some dangerous pitching machines. But critics such as Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., insist the agency moves far too slowly in banning dangerous products. The commission took over a year, for example, to act against such cancer-causing substances as Tris and asbestos.

"We wished we could have acted the next day," a commission spokesman insisted. But, he added, "we had to build a case from scratch in investigating these machines."

College days are here again

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Thoughts upon No. 1 son becoming Joe College:

The reality that the Big Day is about to arrive comes home to you when you pull out your checkbook preparatory to taking the first hunk out of the college fund you have been so faithfully building since somewhere around V-J Day. The graph suddenly takes a plunge reminiscent of Black Friday, 1929.

And this is just the beginning. Do not allow yourself to contemplate the financial cost of the next four years or you will begin asking yourself if it wouldn't be better, after all, if your son got into pipeline welding.

First test of parental alplomb: Keeping a smile on your face when the residence hall adviser solemnly informs you that women guests must be out of the dorms no later than 2 a.m.

And are you getting a message about your son's readiness for college as you lug only three books, but six pieces of stereo equipment up to his room?

Then there comes that traumatic moment when you must break the news that there will be no phone in his room. This is the time to introduce him to stationery. Look at it this way, you tell him, a letter home once a quarter might qualify as a theme in freshman English.

Sooner or later you will have to come to grips with the matter of an allowance. This is best done before you get to college and your son has had a chance to talk to the kid who drove over in the blue Aston-Martin.

This should be approached in the manner of labor negotiations, which my son felt at home with since his demands were like those of Leonard Woodcock representing the United Auto Workers.

Avoid references to when you went to college. All kids today think their parents trudged off to one-room log school houses carrying writing slates. They just don't identify, any more than you did.

One pleasant surprise I was not prepared for is how little store kids seem to set today on their wardrobe. (I am told this might be different with girls.) If a kid has a pair of sneakers that he can still lace up, cutoff jeans that have not completely unraveled and a T-shirt with only three holes, he considers himself well dressed.

In our case we had to drop a gentle hint that there just might be an occasion at college when he would need a tie. He went out and bought one that looked like it came from a joke shop.

If you told him that when you were in college you wore a coat and tie to classes every day, he'd ask what you did with your spats.

Grover Cleveland

Grover Cleveland is ranked, according to a ruling by the State Department, as both the 22nd and 24th President of the United States. He is the only Chief Executive to have served two non-consecutive terms. First elected in 1884, he was defeated for reelection in 1888 by Benjamin Harrison, although he led in the popular vote. He ran against Harrison again in 1892 and won.

He didn't have to rebid in notrump. Still, four spades with a hundred honors is not a really bad result, but South compounded his crime and found a way to go down after West gave him a chance to misplay the hand. Ann Landers

PTA project in centers

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I saw a TV special on incest. I doubt that many people watched it. It was aired at 11:30 p.m. and incest is a subject most folks would rather not think about. The narrator said previous statistics have been proven wrong — that incest happens much more frequently than anyone had imagined.

I believe it because I went through that special hell with my own stepfather. I was ten when it began, and not overdeveloped. I prayed every night he would go away. I was lucky. My prayers were answered. He left my mom when I was 13. I was also fortunate that he never raped me. All he wanted to do was fool around.

Now, many years later, I realize I'm not the only one. A few days ago a friend broke down and told me she had gone through the same thing with her natural father. Her nightmare lasted eight years. For some reason her father stopped bothering her when she got a steady boyfriend. Like me, she was lucky to get an understanding husband who helped her get over the emotional trauma.

The reason I am writing is to plead for more treatment centers to help those who are not as fortunate as we were. As of now, there is only one such center in the United States.

There are so many children and adults with vivid memories going through this awful nightmare. They need help, Ann. Uncommon, you say? She was my next-door neighbor. — We Prayed Together Without Even Knowing It

Dear Friend: I saw that superb NBC special. In fact, it was inspired by my column.

I hope they will rerun it soon. More people need to be made aware of the problem. And yes, you are right about treatment centers. We need dozens more. Here's a project for PTAs all over the nation.

Dear Ann Landers: Since my father is a dentist who has always adjusted bills for "family," I'd like to comment on the letter critical of the young dentist who did not want to do free work for relatives.

First: Setting up a practice is very expensive and there is no way to pay for it except with money received for work done. The patients don't exactly start lining up at the door the first day.

Second: Every person who recently graduated from dental school will be incensed by the comment that they need to "experiment" on their patients. It is insulting to the schools of dental medicine as well as to the dentists to assume that they are not qualified to make professional judgments.

My father had generous relatives and friends who insisted on paying for at least part of their work. They also told everyone they knew what a conscientious young dentist he was!

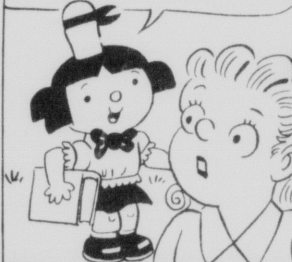

After practicing dentistry for 37 years, my father still does free and "discount" work for relatives. If you want to compare his "gifts" over the years with what they gave him when he was a boy, it is obvious who gave more. — Proud Daughter, Niece, Granddaughter, Etc.

Dear Daughter: Every dentist who reads your letter will love you. And they should. You sound like a neat lady. Thanks for writing.

Herzog not happy

Royals up lead to three games

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Considering that his Kansas City Royals finally are putting some distance in front of their pursuers in the American League West, Manager Whitey Herzog was surprisingly testy Thursday night.

Certainly, Herzog is happy that the Royals ran their winning streak to a club record nine games, in the process taking a three game lead over the Chicago White Sox, Minnesota and Texas, all in a virtual tie for second place. But Herzog was much less happy about having to call on Doug Bird to get the final two outs in the Royals' 9-6 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Bird had pitched 5 2-3 innings to earn the victory in Wednesday night's 15 inning marathon here, but Herzog was forced to use him again when the Brewers rallied in the ninth inning against Larry Gura. Mark Littell, who leads Royal pitchers in saves with 12, is sidelined with pulled back muscles.

"That was a hell of a ninth inning," Herzog said. "I'm not worried about the other clubs in the race right now, just my club. I'll start worrying about the other clubs about the last two weeks of the season."

"Right now, we're not physically ready," he said. "We're hurting and we're trying to operate with eight pitchers. Our pitching will just have to hold up until Sept. 1 when we can add somebody else to the roster and get some help."

The Royals took an 8-1 lead by bunching five of their eight hits — one a three run homer by John Wathan — in the third inning for six runs. But the Brewers chased winner Paul Splittorff (11-6) with an eighth inning run, and closed to within 9-5 against Gura in the ninth as Charlie Moore singled and came around on a wild pitch, a single by Jim Wohlford and a fielder's choice.

Gura then walked Don Money and left in favor of Bird with a 2-0 count on Sal Bando, who eventually walked to fill the bases. After Cecil Cooper struck out, pinch hitter Ed Kirkpatrick singled in a run, but Jim Wynn bounced into a game ending force play.

"I had a good fast ball, which kind of surprised me after pitching that long the night before," Bird said. "My arm feels pretty good, although maybe it will hurt some tomorrow. I was kind of surprised Whitey used me, but I was the only righthander in the bullpen, and it's getting to the time of season when you can't get out of there."

If Herzog has pitching problems, consider those of Brewer Manager Alex Grammas, whose No. 1 problem at the moment is lefthander Jerry Augustine (11-15).

Augustine broke a personal five game losing streak last Saturday, beating the White Sox 4-2 on a seven hitter. But he gave up a two run single to Joe Zdeb in the second this time, and was chased in the third after a triple by George Brett, a single by Hal McRae and a walk.

Covens greeted Sah Hinds with an RBI single and Wathan followed with his first major league homer. A walk, a fielder's choice, a stolen base and an RBI single by Frank White completed the six run inning.

Brock falls short of breaking Ty Cobb's record in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We just had him running, that's all," said St. Louis Manager Vern Rapp following the 890th and 891st stolen bases of Lou Brock's career.

But while the light was green for the veteran Brock in his pursuit of Ty Cobb's lifetime record of 892 Thursday night, it will be red tonight as the Cardinals begin a 16-game trip at Los Angeles.

Rapp said Brock, who played in all but one St. Louis game during a 13-game home stand, will be rested as the club faces Dodgers right-hander Rick Rhoden.

"He's had it all year," the Cards field pilot said, however, of Brock's carte blanche authorization to steal on his own in subsequent games.

The 38-year-old Brock, who had predicted he would top Cobb's mark by stealing seven bases during the home stand, seemed more resigned to his near miss than resentful following two thefts against the San Francisco Giants.

"It was just a pot luck situation," he said. "It's been a very tough year. Today was no different than any other day."

"I'm not going to make any prediction along that line. Every time I've said something lately it's turned out the other way," said Brock when asked how imminent his dash past Cobb might be.

"I guess with our line of attack you can say it's a foregone conclusion," he suggested. "Barring injury, it should happen soon."

While Brock admitted mild disappointment at not setting the record as he had intended at Busch Stadium, the rookie catcher for the Giants assigned the task of slowing his pace expressed only relief.

"Every one knows Lou's going to break the record sooner or later," said Gary Alexander. "It's really not like he's setting it on you personally or something to be ashamed of, but I'm still glad it didn't come against me."

Brock, after executing his first steal on only the second pitch delivered by San Francisco right-hander John Montefusco, afterward gained a large lead toward third and was halfway there when a teammate fouled off a 2-2 Montefusco pitch.

"It wasn't his fault; it was a two-strike pitch," said Brock, who later stole second base again in the third inning. "That's what I mean by a design for running. We haven't had it all year."

During the course of its 16-game trip, St. Louis will make stops at Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in that order before returning home Sept. 12.

What will Brock's accomplishments likely be by then?

"The approach is one at a time," he said. "A record's a record no matter where it's set."

Chiefs will need tougher defense

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

Prospectus

Coach Paul Wiggin manages forward look despite consecutive 5-9 records in his first two seasons at helm. He feels his problems are primarily defensive, though the running game hasn't been bowling people over. The Chiefs are still an organization in transition, certainly not the awesome crew they were for first decade of their existence. Give 'em time.

Paul Wiggin

Offense

Quarterback: Mike Livingston, long in shadow of Lenny Dawson, has at last established himself as the main guy. His stats are impressive enough. Tony Adams is the backup passer. Rating—B

Receiving: Henry Marshall and Larry Brunson man the wide posts, and Walter White, a pass-grabbing threat, holds down tight end in throwing situations. They're all young and developing. Fourth-round pick Andre Samuels and free agent Edwin Beckman vie for tight end backup role. Rating—B

Running: MacArthur Lane is the fullback, with rookie Tony Reed best bet to start at halfback, since injuries have sidelined veterans Woody Green and Ed Podolak. Rookie Mark Bailey could be surprise at fullback. Rating—B

Offensive Line: It's anchored around all-pro Jack Rudnay, one of the fine centers in the game. Moving Charley Getty to guard last year was positive switch, making room for Matt Herkenhoff as starter at tackle. Look for soph Rod Walters to log more playing time. Rating—B

Defense

Defensive Line: Critical area. Had to break in too many kids last year, and it showed in sieve-like defense. Remaining veteran is Wilbur Young, and he's not sure of holding on to job. There's a whole covey of people for tackle spots. Rating—C+

Linebackers: The draft's got to provide some help, maybe in form of Thomas Howard of Texas Tech. The incumbents are aging fast, particularly Willie Lanier in middle, where he gave way temporarily to Jimbo Elrod in '76. Rating—C

Secondary: The safety spots were solidified a year ago with addition of Gary Barbaro, rookie surprise, and Tim Gray. Now the corner posts get injection from top draftee Gary Green, a surefire starter. Emmitt Thomas will probably hang on. Rating—B

Kicking, Special Teams: Jan Stenerud, the premier placekicker, and Jerrel Wilson have had more spectacular years, though latter was unusually effective in coffin corner boots. But Chiefs are well satisfied with both. The return teams also did well. Rating—A

Prediction

Enthusiasm, of which the Chiefs have plenty, can't compensate for talent deficiencies, of which the Chiefs also have their share. That defense still looks vulnerable, and need offensive running threat. Fourth in AFC West.

Cards lose to Giants

ST. LOUIS (AP) — What started out as a momentous occasion for Lou Brock wound up on a more satisfying note for San Francisco's John Montefusco.

Montefusco, a right-handed pitcher, weathered two hits and two stolen bases by Brock in the early innings Thursday night and afterward contributed his bat to a 4-2 Giants victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 38-year-old Brock, who was battling steep odds, scored both Cards runs but fell one shy of matching Ty Cobb's lifetime theft mark of 892 and two short of eclipsing the standard at home as he had predicted.

Brock, following his stolen bases, scored in the first inning on Keith Hernandez' double and in the third on a single by Templeton to establish a 2-0 St. Louis lead.

But San Francisco retaliated in the fourth on solo home runs by rookies Jack Clark and Randy Elliott and arose for two more runs in the seventh inning to pin the loss on Butch Metzger, 4-1.

MU will be different: Woods

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Quarterback Pete Woods, who looks like Burt Reynolds with freckles, thinks he knows exactly what happened in Missouri's zany 1976 season. "I blame it on emotionalism," the rangy senior told Big Eight skywriters Thursday. "And I don't think anything like that is going to happen to us again."

Woods is predicting Missouri followers will see a more polished, more stable bunch than the 1976 squad that alternately skied to greatness only to stumble to humiliation. "Maybe then people will finally forget about all that," he said with a sigh. "All winter, all summer, everywhere we go, people want us to explain what happened."

Missouri captured the intrigue of much of the nation with its stunning upsets over USC and Ohio State. But they also enraged and dismayed many of their alumni with in-

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For a National Football League team with an excess of ammunition, the St. Louis Cardinals are drawing an embarrassing number of blanks.

The Cardinals, who have scored only two touchdowns and are winless in three games, will try to reduce the misfires when they play host to the Cincinnati Bengals in another NFL preseason game Saturday night.

A Cincinnati attack ramrodded by quarterback Ken Anderson is of less concern to St. Louis Coach Don Coryell than his own malfunctioning offense.

"We haven't had a lot of high points with three losses, but the defense is playing well," said Coryell following a 19-10 Cards setback against the Cleveland Browns last week.

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — All-star teams from Huntsville, Ala., and New Orleans, La., each with one loss, battle tonight for a berth in the finals of the Babe Ruth World Series baseball tournament.

The winner will advance to a championship game Saturday with Brooklyn, N. Y., which remained unbeaten in tourney play with a 12-10 victory over New Orleans, La., Thursday night.

Huntsville stayed alive in the tournament Thursday night by beating Jefferson City, Mo., 10-3 on a four-hitter by Jay Oliver. Greg O'Rear led Huntsville's 11-hit attack with two hits, including a double, and three RBIs.

A new Babe Ruth World Series record of 23 walks was set in the Brooklyn-New Orleans game. Brooklyn's 16 walks off New Orleans pitching also tied a tournament record.

Brooklyn battled back from a 10-3 deficit with five runs in the fourth inning, two in the fifth and one each in the sixth and seventh. Winning pitcher Rick Colacino retired 11 of the final 12 batters.

Brooklyn held the edge going into the finals of the double elimination tournament without a loss. The winner of tonight's losers bracket finale would have to beat Brooklyn twice Saturday to claim the championship.

The Tigers have another murderous schedule, opening at home against USC and counting Arizona State and California among other non-conference foes.

"We have two goals this year," Woods announced. "Consistency and the Orange Bowl."

Although the offensive line is questionable, and the defense contains a couple of potentially tender spots, Missouri seems capable of reaching those goals. And Woods will be the key operative.

If ever a young athlete rose to an occasion, it was Woods last year at Ohio State. Making his first start, he guided the Tigers to a 22-21 victory, hurling two touchdown passes and driving to a touchdown and two-point conversion in the waning moments.

Jim Hart, who has played only three quarters to date, will quarterback the Cards offense for two periods and afterward give way to Steve Pisarkiewicz, the team's top draft choice.

"It's like you've given half an effort," said Hart after the game was limited to 30 minutes of playing time and a one-yard touchdown pass to Wayne Morris against Cleveland.

"The second half is usually good one for us."

In addition to a sizable contribution from Hart, the key to a better St. Louis offense include running back Terry Morris, who has carried on eight times for 26 yards, and

Kansas Citian slain on busy street corner

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An unidentified man fired three large-caliber bullets into the body of a Kansas City man Thursday afternoon, killing him on a busy street corner. But police said no witnesses came forward with information.

Police said Dennis Patton, 20, was standing on the sidewalk at 3041 Prospect about 4 p.m. when his assailant shot him in the head, rib cage and abdomen.

Investigators obtained a description of Patton's killer but they're not saying who gave it to them. Instead, police said Thursday night they are frustrated by the apparent unwillingness of witnesses to give an accounting of what occurred. No arrest has been made.

"There are about 40 to 50 people on that block day or night," said Floyd Smith, a detective in the crimes against persons division. "And nobody comes forward."

Patton was shot while standing in front of a shoe shine stand. The street corner, where police said numerous persons hang out regularly, consists of an automated laundry, a grocery store, a dry cleaner and an auto service garage.

Patton lived at home with his mother, Mrs. Rachel Patton, and his brother, Jesse, 16. According to his mother, he was not employed at the time of his death but at one time worked as a waiter at Crown Center.

A friend, who called the Patton household Thursday night only to be told that Dennis had been killed, said Patton spent a lot of his time in the street "taking care of business."

Directors of hospital to consider next steps

PRINCETON, Mo. (AP) — In an effort to keep the Axtell Community Hospital open, the directors of the facility are scheduled to meet next Thursday and consider what steps they can take.

One alternative is to again ask residents of Mercer County to vote to establish a hospital district and levy a tax to support it.

The proposal was defeated

578 to 552 in a special election on Tuesday.

"It's hard to explain," said Mrs. Poe Merrill, administrator of the hospital. "Possibly there was complacency and people thought there would be no problem and did not come out and vote. Most of the votes against it were out in the country, outside Princeton and Mercer."

Axtell Community is the only hospital in the county, on the Iowa line in north-central Missouri, and the closest hospitals in other counties are 25 to 30 miles away. The county has a population of 4,910, and Princeton and Mercer are the principal towns.

"We're not ready to give up," Mrs. Merrill said Thursday. "We still plan to operate as long as we can."

Lake Ladoga, the largest freshwater lake in Europe, is located in Russia near the Finnish border.

THE SUBARU 4 WHEEL DRIVE WAGON. CLIMBS LIKE A GOAT, WORKS LIKE A HORSE AND EATS LIKE A BIRD.

*Total POE - Not including dealer prep, inland transportation and taxes. Rally stripe, wheel trim rings and luggage rack are optional at extra cost.

A FEATURE NO OTHER PASSENGER CAR FEATURES.
Full time front wheel drive becomes 4 wheel drive at the flick of a lever inside the car. Which means you can drive almost any road in almost any weather.

PRACTICAL WHERE IT COUNTS - AT THE GAS STATION.
The manual transmission Subaru 4 wheel drive wagon gets 33 highway and 27 city miles to a gallon of regular based on 1977 EPA test estimates. Your mileage may vary because of the way you drive, driving conditions, the condition of your car and whatever optional equipment you might have. But this is one wagon that's kind to you at the gas station.

ALL THAT FOR ONLY THIS: $4858
Del. Price, Tax Not Included.
Loaded with extras like a push-button AM radio, rear windshield wiper and washer, reclining bucket seats and power front disc brakes.

SUBARU. THE ECONOMY CAR FOR TODAY'S ECONOMY.

SUNDAY

(NBC) SUNDAY MYSTERY MOVIE: 8:00 PM E.D.T., P.D.T. - 7:00 PM C.D.T., M.D.T.

"McCloud—McCloud Meets Dracula" Dennis Weaver, Diana Muldaur. Working to track down a sniper who is terrorizing the city, McCloud answers a call about a new slaying and is told by the medical examiner (Michael Sacks) that the crime was committed by someone who sucked blood from the victim. (R)

(NBC) MOVIE OF THE WEEK: 9:30 PM E.D.T., P.D.T. - 8:30 PM C.D.T., M.D.T.

"The Possessed" James Farentino, Joan Hackett. A former priest uses his unusual powers to repel the challenge from a supernatural force that threatens an isolated private school for girls. (R)

TUESDAY

(ABC) TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIE: 9:00 PM E.D.T., P.D.T. - 8:00 PM C.D.T., M.D.T.

"Having Babies" 1976 Desi Arnaz, Jr., Adrienne Barbeau. A sensitive, compelling story of four couples as they experience childbirth by the 'natural' Lamaze method. (R)

THURSDAY

(NBC) BELL SYSTEM PRESENTS: 9:00 PM E.D.T., P.D.T. - 8:00 PM C.D.T., M.D.T.:

"The Man in the Iron Mask" Richard Chamberlain, Patrick McGeehan. Based on Alexandre Dumas' swashbuckling tale of a man who is forced to wear a terrible iron mask because he so closely resembles his twin brother—King Louis XIV of France. (R)

FRIDAY

(CBS) FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIES: 9:00 PM E.D.T., P.D.T. - 8:00 PM C.D.T., M.D.T.

"I Want to Keep My Baby" 1976 Mariel Hemingway, Susan Anspach. The drama revolves around a 15-year-old girl who discovers that she is pregnant and makes the momentous decision to have the baby and raise it herself. (R)

SATURDAY

(NBC) SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: 9:00 PM E.D.T., P.D.T. - 8:00 PM C.D.T., M.D.T.

"The Sugarland Express" 1974 Goldie Hawn, William Atherton. Lou Jean Poplin arranges her husband's successful jailbreak, but in the ensuing confusion they kidnap a policeman and lead a posse of police, newsmen and curious citizens straight to their destination, the town of Sugarland. (R)

Series star Valerie Harper, as Rhoda Gerard, has a serious discussion with Michael DeLano, playing a Las Vegas entertainer, on "RHODA," Sunday, August 28 on CBS-TV. (R)

The Sedalia Democrat and Capital Programs for the Week of Aug. 28, 1977

(Top) Nancy Dussault, Robert Goulet and singers and dancers perform; and (bottom) Carol Channing goes through her paces, in "PEOPLE'S COMMAND PERFORMANCE: 1977." The star-studded, two-hour entertainment special, featuring performances by a viewers' choice of top show-business artists, will be rebroadcast Sunday, August 28 on CBS-TV.

Profile

Didi Carr

Didi Carr, starring as Diane in the new ABC series 'Sugar Time!', had toured internationally as a nightclub vocalist for nine years prior to deciding to concentrate on an acting career.

She has performed in two feature films, 'The First Nudie Musical,' a Jack Reeves production, and 'Catch a Falling Star' for Warner Bros. Her television credits include a guest role in the 'Busting Loose' series.

Miss Carr was born at Lock Haven, Pa., the daughter of Florence Davis Cohen and Nat Cohen, an animal nutritionist. She has a brother, Eddie Cohen, 20, a college student.

Interested in acting as a child, she studied with a private drama coach prior to enrolling at the High School of the Performing Arts in New York City. Asked to leave because "I didn't conform too well," she opted for a career in music instead of acting. She continued her education at Spring Valley High School, Spring Valley, N.Y. Following graduation, she attended Rockland Community College, Suffern, N.Y., for a year.

Although she never studied music formally, Miss Carr performed as a vocalist at clubs throughout the United States, including Playboy Clubs in St. Louis, Atlanta and New Orleans, as well as abroad.

Miss Carr was married to Daniel Ross-Feldstein, a Los Angeles real estate broker, on June 12, 1977, at Orangeburg, N.J.

Her avocational interests include volunteer work which she has done both with blind children and with patients at a convalescent home in Los Angeles.

—BY JOEY SASSO—

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: A mysterious illness has struck Kate Jackson, causing alarm on the set of 'Charlie's Angels.' The illness, which her TV producers are trying to hush up, caused her to collapse on the set a few weeks ago. Her private physician immediately ordered Kate taken to Cedars-Sinai Hospital in Los Angeles for tests. The tests, however, failed to find cause of her strange sickness. "I'm really fine," Kate told me. "I'm not worried." But Kate's optimism isn't shared by the producers. This is the second time she's blacked out and had to be suddenly hospitalized. Last year, the 28-year-old actress was released after three days, even though doctors couldn't pinpoint her eerie condition. A close friend of Kate's told me, "Sometimes it's so bad, she can hardly lift her head off the pillow. I've seen her go to work in front of the camera when it was all she could do just to stay upright on her feet." What's behind the illness? Kate has her own theory. "I really think it's from tension. We've had a lot of it on the show. Everyone's under tremendous pressure." ... He's still in love with Lynn Marta, insists David Soul of 'Starsky and Hutch,' and he explains his frequent dinner-dates with 'Charlie's Angel' Jaclyn Smith as "all in the line of duty." They both have the same boss, producer Aaron Spelling, he points out. If this is just business, who wouldn't want a job with Spelling? ... Know why Leonard Nimoy won't be seen in the new 'Star Trek' series? "Because it took me an hour and a half every morning in makeup just to put on my ears," he disclosed.

EYE ON TV: "I like girls who are themselves. Natural, unaffected, honest and open," confides Shaun Cassidy. The 18-year-old star of ABC's 'The Hardy Boys' told me, "The biggest thing is intelligence, along with a sense of humor—all those qualities that are impossible to find." Shaun also admits he finds "too much make-up not very attractive. The less, the better." Despite his enormous popularity with girls because of the highly-rated series, the young half brother of David Cassidy has yet to find a lady to share his life. "I have a lot of telephone numbers, but there isn't one special person that I'm seeing at the moment. I just came back from Australia, then I'll be in Japan and then when I return we start shooting 'The Hardy Boys.' I don't have time for a personal life."

TV BACKSTAGE: Jackie Gleason's famous droopy look is a little less droopy these days. The comic has just undergone plastic surgery at Jackson Medical Center in Miami to remove bags on his upper eyelids. Gleason's doctor, Bernard Halperin, said that Jackie's eyelids drooped so much that he could no longer read scripts—but a leading plastic surgeon reckons that he simply did it to look younger! ... Sonny Bono and his girlfriend, Susie Coelho, plan to get married soon and they want to do it on the air a la Tiny Tim. NBC will apparently be the lucky (gasp) host ... The writers of NBC's 'Little House on the Prairie' have come up with a rather peculiar idea for breathing new life into the show next season. They've decided to have Melissa Sue Anderson (she plays Mary) go blind. The thinking behind the plan is that the show needs a change of scene, of characters and of pace so the family's move to a new home near a school for the blind will, they hope, supply all three. Only in America ... NBC sportscasters Jim Simpson and Marv Albert were sipping Teacher's Scotch sours at the famed Copacabana Lounge while discussing the 1977 Junior Olympics ... Raymond Burr drinks nothing but Hennessy V.S.O.P.

Young MCA recording artist, Jesseca James (a/k/a Kathy Twitty Harris, Conway Twitty's teenage daughter), traveled to Baton Rouge, Louisiana recently to pass on the title of 'World's Ideal Miss' to this year's recipient. Jesseca was crowned 'World's Ideal Miss' at the pageant last year, winning a four year scholarship to the college of her choice as one of the pageant's prizes.

This year, Jesseca was a part of the week's festivities and rehearsals, as well as the pageant itself. She gave a touching farewell speech, which was a tribute to her mother, Micki Twitty. The meaningful part of this speech was the fact that it was a total surprise to Micki. She knew that Jesseca was to give a speech, but did not know what the contents were.

Jesseca also crowned the new queen during the pageant ceremonies.

guess you might call it 'glitter country'."

Loretta Lynn
Conway Twitty

Loretta Lynn was also in the Los Angeles area recently to perform with fellow MCA artist Conway Twitty at the Anaheim Convention Center and to appear on 'The Tonight Show' with guest host David Brenner.

While performing at the Convention Center, Loretta was talking about the fact that Universal Studios is making her best-selling life story, 'Coalminer's Daughter,' into a movie. When asked by someone in the audience if she was going to play herself, Loretta said, 'Heck no, I am the coalminer's daughter, I don't have to play her!'

The second single to be pulled from Loretta's 'I Remember Patsy' album, entitled 'Why Can't He Be You,' is the follow-up to her smash number one single, 'She's Got You.'

Loretta's version of this Patsy Cline classic was produced by Owen Bradley and is destined to be another number one single.

Joe Ely

By his own admission, MCA recording artist Joe Ely has well over 40 different hats. One of the recent additions to his collection is a glistening gold mesh baseball cap. Joe wore the cap on camera while he was in Luckenbach, Texas, taping a portion of the Lone Star Texas Music Special, which will be aired early this fall.

Unknown to Joe, the hat created problems for the cameramen. It seems all they were picking up was a gold flash under the lights. At the director's request, Joe graciously removed the gold cap and opted for a more conservative felt Stetson. Joe facetiously remarked, "I

General inspects 351st, discusses B-1

By VICKI MARSH
Staff Writer

KNOB NOSTER — "The 351st is in outstanding condition," was the opinion of Brig. Gen. William E. Masterson, commander of the 40th Air Division of the Strategic Air Command (SAC) at Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Michigan.

Gen. Masterson, who inspected the facilities at Whiteman Air Force Base Monday through Wednesday, is responsible for war-preparedness and training of several SAC bases, including WAFB.

"Things are very much in order in my view. Everyone that I saw and chatted with...made a concerted effort to polish themselves...individually and collectively," Gen. Masterson said of Whiteman, which in May won the Blanchard Trophy as the best missile wing in SAC.

Gen. Masterson, who granted an exclusive interview to The Democrat-Capital before leaving the base Wednesday, commented on several phases of the nation's current defense program.

The silos housing the missiles of the 351st will undergo a "hardening" program beginning next spring in an effort to make the Minutemen less vulnerable to attack.

"The USSR has an awesome strategic defense capability and if that capability were targeted toward our Minutemen missile fields, the survivability of a large number of our force would come into question," Gen. Masterson said.

"In recognition of that Soviet capability, the upgrade program is designed to offset that and force the Soviets to think twice about trying to target Minutemen," he said.

Gen. Masterson sees no area of conflict with the commencement of this program and the attempts by President Carter to further Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) with Russia.

"We would all have to support Carter's objectives. His bottom line, his goal, is the elimination of all nuclear weapons on the earth. Everyone would have to support this.

"But this can't be done on a unilateral basis. In peacetime, while we're attempting to negotiate an agreement and to reduce arms with the ultimate objective of eliminating nuclear weapons, we still have to keep our powder dry. It would be foolhardy for us to unilaterally reduce," Gen. Masterson said.

The silo hardening program will consist of modifying them, "on the order of three to four times their current hardness," Gen. Masterson said. It will not involve drilling new silos.

The President's decision to eliminate production of the B-1 bomber caused "disappointment" in the Air Force, according to Gen. Masterson.

"The loss of the B-1 was a bitter disappointment to those people that feel a manned, penetrating bomber is a strategic part of our triad," he said. The triad consists of land-based strategic missiles, submarine- or sea-launched missiles and manned bombers.

"The B-52 has served us well for many years. The B-1 bomber was the Air Force's attempt toward modernizing that part of the triad," Gen. Masterson said.

He was quick to add that when the command to eliminate the B-1 bomber came down, everyone in the Air Force joined solidly in support behind the decision.

"The Air Force will do the best possible job to accomplish its mission with what they have," he said.

The Pentagon announced last spring that Minuteman production, begun in the early 1960s, will be halted.

"This will not affect Whiteman at all. It is alive and well and will likely continue to be so," Gen. Masterson said.

The Minutemen III missiles, now used in 550 of the nation's 1,000 missile silos, can fire multiple nuclear warheads at several targets after the missiles are launched into space. Gen. Masterson sees "no chance" Whiteman, which now has the Minuteman II, will receive the Minutemen III.

"There won't be much change in the ratio of our MIRV (multiple independently targeted re-entry vehicle) or un-MIRVed systems. Even if they had not ceased Minutemen production, we

Youngsters praised for honesty

"I'm kind of proud of myself," said Danny Watring, 14, laughing as he summed up his feelings on finding a roll of money totaling $253 on the State Fairgrounds about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, which he turned over to the Highway Patrol.

Watring, 118 South Stewart, and three friends, Rhonda R. Riley, 3004 Southwest Boulevard, Diane M. Wallen, 1410 South Warren, and Herby H. Bellmer, 2201 West Fifth, all 14, were on their way home after a day at the Fair Wednesday when they stopped for a drink at a water fountain and discovered a roll of bills lying on the ground.

"We didn't know what to do with it," Watring said. "We saw a concession stand across the road, but we didn't know the owner and didn't want to just hand it to him. He might have ripped us off," he said.

Thoughts of being ripped off were running through the mind of Jesse Summers, owner of the concession stand, Thursday morning when he discovered some $250, his stand's profits for the week, missing.

"I discovered this morning that the money was gone," said Summers, O'Fallon, Mo. "My first thought was that someone had stolen it. I told my partner, Pat Shallow, and he told me to report it, although we'd probably never get it back."

The result was a happy ending for everyone involved. Watring and his friends took the roll of bills to the Administration Building where a policeman told them to turn it into the Highway Patrol. According to Watring, the whole experience was "scary."

"The patrolman said that it was an unusual case and started taking out a bunch of papers. It was scary," he said.

When Summers got to the patrol office to report the missing money Thursday morning, Sgt. Roy Dallam was ready.

"About 11 a.m. Thursday this guy came in to report the theft of about $250 to $300," said Sgt. Dallam. "I asked him the denominations and he ran down what he thought he had, but the $2 bill was the clincher," he said, adding that the roll contained only one of the somewhat unusual bills.

Gov. Joseph Teasdale prepares to accept the grand champion ham that was presented to him Thursday morning at the State Fair country ham breakfast. The ham was bought by Jerry Murphy, left, for $4,000. Holding the ham is Jack Runyan, state director of agriculture. At right is Mrs. Theresa Teasdale.

Full schedule awaits Fairgoers

By RON JENNINGS
Staff Writer

A full schedule of judging events and demonstrations, including pony pulling in the Show-Me Arena at 2 p.m., await Fairgoers Friday as the eighth day of the Missouri State Fair gets underway.

The big event Thursday was the Fair's traditional Old Missouri Country Cured Ham Breakfast. Coaxed on by "Colonel" LeRoy Van Dyke, guest auctioneer for the day, Jerry Murphy of Murphy Brothers Exposition Inc. made his near-annual purchase of the grand champion ham at the breakfast.

The 18½-pound prize ham, shown at the Fair by Harold Clennin, California, sold for a record-smashing $4,000 after a brisk round of bidding. Murphy then presented the expensive cut of meat to Gov. and Mrs. Joseph Teasdale, who were seated at the head table overlooking the also record crowd of more than 600 persons who gathered under a large tent on the lawn of Fair Director Jerry Hermann's home. The crowd feasted on ham, eggs, grits, hash brown potatoes, biscuits and red-eye gravy, although the large numbers attending often had to endure considerable waits for their food.

The $4,000 paid for the prize ham Thursday set a record, beating last year's record price of $2,700 by $1,300.

The 7-pound, 11-ounce champion bacon was sold for $700 to the Sedalia Mercantile Bank and Trust Co., whose president, Larry Lumpe, presented the cellophane-wrapped slab to Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick. The bacon was shown by Roger Alewell, of the Alewell Meat Co., Concordia. The reserve champion ham, weighing 19 pounds, 15 ounces, went for $300 to the Missouri Horse and Mule Council. It was shown by Susan Williams, Higginsville.

One hearty eater Thursday morning who couldn't have been happier that the horse and mule council came away with the reserve champion ham was council member Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton, speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives.

Rothman, who says he's been a Fair fan for many years, has been camping with his family on the Fairgrounds since Monday and commuted to Jefferson City this week while the state legislature was in special session.

Socialite testifies before House panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suzi Park Thomson said she told House investigators Thursday that she knew nothing about South Korean payments to congressmen and was never paid for the parties she hosted for congressmen and Korean officials.

She said a reported Korean Central Intelligence Agency official was a guest at some parties but that she did not know he was with the KCIA. She said she had no connection with the KCIA.

Mrs. Thomson also said no South Korean had either paid for or suggested the five large parties and a number of smaller parties she hosted for congressmen and U.S. and Korean officials.

Mrs. Thomson, speaking with reporters after meeting for nearly five hours with investigators for the House Ethics Committee, met with House investigators Thursday and apparently started answering their questions about alleged South Korean influence-buying.

She previously had refused to answer questions from the Ethics Committee staff without a public committee session, saying she feared her answers would be leaked and distorted against her.

The investigators threatened her with contempt last week. But the committee held up contempt proceedings

Wednesday after being told she would meet privately with the investigators.

Mrs. Thomson, a former aide to retired House Speaker Carl Albert, gave a number of parties attended by congressmen and U.S. and Korean officials. She also had a love affair with Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., a congressman under investigation in the alleged Korean influence-buying.

The committee investigators wanted to know whether she knew of any payments to congressmen from Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park or from former Ambassador Kim Dong Jo and about the trip she took to Korea with congressmen in 1975 as an aide and interpreter.

She acknowledged to reporters Thursday that she was a distant relative of Kim Dong Jo and that she knew Tongsun Park but that she never knew about any of their cash contributions, gifts or favors to congressmen.

Mrs. Thomson, 42, told reporters that no South Koreans paid for any of the parties she gave.

Her lawyer, Philip Hirschkop, said she hosted four or five large parties and she said she gave a number of small ones.

Winning pull

Jack Sappington, Pontotoc, Miss., drives his light weight draft horses to the limit as they pull 8,800 pounds to victory Thursday morning. The horses pulled the load a total of 14 feet and 11 inches in two tries.

Loan defaults hurt students

There are two dreadful misconceptions about federally guaranteed student loans that need clarification.

First, the program is not the bottomless barrel some persons surmise it to be. That attitude has created more than $400 million in defaults over a 9-year period. Second, most of the persons who default on their loans are not among the nation's nearly 7 per cent unemployed.

In both instances the misconceptions are the product of generalities that have done great harm to the federally guaranteed student loans. Under the guidelines of the program applicants can borrow up to $7,500 as undergraduates and $15,000 as graduate students at an interest charge that is below market rates. Repayment of the loans begins after a student graduates and can take up to 10 years.

Violators have found the government to be a softie in pursuing payment, which undoubtedly has paved the way toward massive abuses.

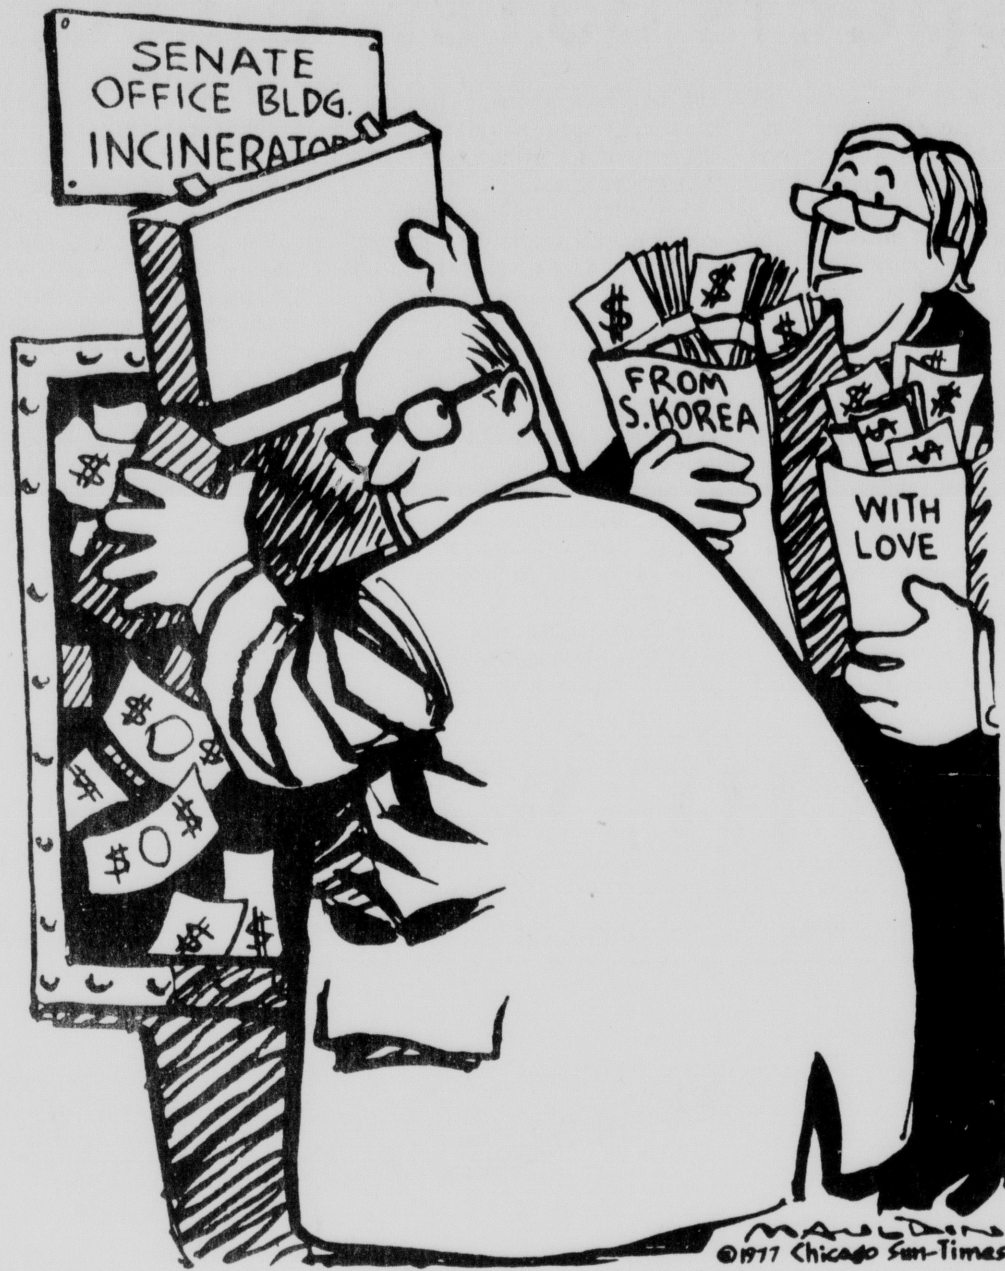

For instance, one professional basketball player—who earns about $85,000 annually—was found to be in arrears on a $3,500 student loan. Another case turned up a person who is an employee of a district attorney. Despite a $12,000 annual salary this debtor defaulted on $5,370 in loans.

The first step in mustering more purpose in the attempts to collect on the loans is up to the U.S. Office of Education. If that encouragement is lacking then those found to be without enthusiasm for repayment should hear from a U.S. attorney.

Persons out of a job or no longer able to work because of physical handicap obviously should not be prosecuted. Some situations, however, are inexcusable. Those surely figure to a large measure among the approximately 280,000 loan recipients who defaulted.

This is not a matter of searching for felons as much as it is turning up the culprits who are making it difficult for subsequent classes of collegians to obtain an education. Pursuit of those who have defaulted and repayment by those who are in compliance should be continued with the best interest of future college graduates in mind. (Kansas City Times)

"Will the gentleman yield?"

WASHINGTON — Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, is a Midwestern farmer and lawyer with a reputation for being as straight as a stalk of Iowa corn.

But the low-keyed Smith has been using his position as chairman of the House Small Business Committee to promote himself throughout Iowa. At Smith's direction, several committee lawyers and staff members have been preparing a huge mailing aimed only at the voters in the congressman's home state.

Perhaps it is more than a coincidence that Smith may run for governor of Iowa next year.

Important committee business has gone unattended, our sources say, while well-paid lawyers, investigators, secretaries and clerks have spent weeks on such mundane chores as sticking on labels and licking envelopes.

Between 150,000 and 200,000 letters are being mailed to Iowa residents, many of them outside of Smith's district. They explain that farmers who are struck by natural disasters, such as droughts, are eligible for special low-interest loans. Such letters have not been mailed to any other state.

"A bill which I authored and promoted," Smith proudly informs his fellow Iowans in the letter, "passed the Congress a few days ago and may be of great and special interest to you." Mayors throughout Iowa also received a separate, personalized letter from Smith.

Committee funds, we have learned, are being used to pay for printing the letters and envelopes. Any use of committee staffers for outside business, meanwhile, would violate the rules of Congress.

Merry-go-round

Iowa congressman promotes himself

The counsel of one small business subcommittee, David Metzger, complained in a secret memo that the mailing was disrupting important congressional business. "I can understand Mr. Smith's political reasons for wanting the mailing done quickly," Metzger fumed in a memo to the committee's chief counsel, Thomas Powers.

Metzger grumped that the committee's publications specialist, Lois Liberty, has been so busy licking envelopes that she hasn't been able to prepare a committee report. The committee is falling behind on other projects due this fall involving solar energy and occupational safety and health. "The deadlines do not lend themselves to losing an entire week in August," Metzger griped.

Smith, however, insisted to our associate Gary Cohn that the mailing is a "proper and appropriate outreach program." He said that Iowans are not aware of the disaster loans and he believes it is important to inform them of the new program.

The Iowa Democrat maintained that the mailing project was "only taking several hours." Several committee sources, however, told us the project has dragged on for weeks, consuming the valuable time of at least five professionals and other staffers. Smith said he is not now a candidate for governor of Iowa, but he refused to rule out the possibility that he might run in the future. Other sources, however, say Smith "had his eye on the governorship."

Powers told us the mailing has not disrupted committee business because the five professional staffers are "only working secondarily on it." But he acknowledged that the committee has issued no investigative reports this year. The mailing, he added, was Smith's idea.

FOREIGN FLAG FLEET: Big Oil is quietly lobbying behind the scenes against a proposal to import more oil in U.S. tankers. The oil companies have neglected to mention, however, that they have licensed over 500 of their own tankers in Liberia and Panama, where the costs are as low as the safety standards.

President Carter, who received hefty campaign contributions from the maritime unions, wants a requirement that 9.5 per cent of imported oil be carried in U.S. tankers. This would create jobs and protect against environmentally damaging oil spills. Last year, for example, 11 of the 19 tankers involved in accidents were licensed in Liberia, including the infamous Argo Merchant.

Safety standards for Liberian and Panamanian ships are abysmally low. Some 170 marine officers applying for Liberian licenses, for example, were recently found to have fraudulent credentials. Oceanographer Jacques Cousteau says "a shoemaker can buy a captain's license for $150" in Liberia or Panama.

The oil companies are saving a fortune by registering their ships abroad. Exxon, for instance, has licensed 164 tankers in foreign countries; Shell, 123; Texaco, 55; and Mobil, 45.

The Treasury Department estimates that by licensing their tankers abroad, the oil firms save as much as $140 million a year in U.S. taxes through a special break.

The Long view on welfare

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — When Russell Long of Louisiana came to the Senate in December of 1948, he was not quite two months past the minimum age for membership in that body. He has now served for nearly 29 years. From the harvest of such experience, with luck one distills wisdom. Long demonstrated this last week.

The senator delivered himself of a statement on the President's proposals for welfare reform. He made three points. One had to do with the nature of mankind, a second with the nature of bureaucracy, the third with the nature of our republic. All of them made sense.

Kilpatrick

Long was not being cynical, he was simply being realistic, in his comments upon the greatest evil in our present welfare system. It is the system's tendency to perpetuate dependency. The dependency that concerns him is not a dependency of money only; it is also a state of mind.

The senator provided a couple of examples. A few years ago, Congress created two new programs of aid to the disabled. The programs have cost far more than they were predicted to cost. "Apparently," said Long, "in attempting to meet the needs of the totally disabled, we have provided an incentive for people who are not totally disabled to convince themselves that they are in order to receive benefits." As a consequence, many persons who could have become productive, self-reliant citizens have become totally dependent instead.

Second example: Fifteen years ago, the welfare bureaucracy settled upon the "declaration method" of determining eligibility for welfare benefits. Under this approach, the applicant is taken at his word. Virtually no verification is attempted of the accuracy of his statement. "This assumption of people's fundamental honesty may have added greatly to the dignity of applying for welfare benefits," said Long, "but it also added greatly to the number of people drawing welfare benefits since it proved an open invitation to fraud and misrepresentation."

But it is part of the nature of bureaucracy, Long pessimistically observed, to cling doggedly to methods that demonstrably do not work. Ideas, once embraced, are seldom relinquished. Presidents and secretaries come and go, but tenured bureaucrats stay on forever. The overwhelming majority of the personnel who put Mr. Carter's new plan together," said Long, "were here before President Carter came on the scene and they will be there after he is gone."

"While the President has insisted on some changes for the better, much of the plan and much of the thinking that went into it represent the views of those who have been with the department for many years under Democratic and Republican administrations. They are perhaps better led and a few years older — but not necessarily much wiser than they were when they served under previous presidents."

The years have taught Russell Long to be instinctively distrustful of cost estimates emerging from the bureaucracy. Medicaid has cost 50 times what Congress was told it would cost. The social services program enacted in 1962 has grown by a like amount. When the senator is advised that Mr. Carter's scheme will cost $6 billion more, "we had better be prepared for an actual cost of up to $60 billion or even $120 billion."

Given the prospect of massive fraud, and given the prospect of enormous cost overruns, Long offers a thoughtful suggestion: He proposes that the Carter program "be tested on a pilot basis for a few years in order to see whether it should be implemented throughout the United States." Let the states experiment! This is the essence of our grand plan of federalism. The President's recommendations for tax relief could not be applied selectively, but nothing in the Constitution would inhibit experiments with job programs, work incentives, and the like.

"Before we move to a massive change in our welfare system," Long remarks, "we must be sure that what we are doing represents a true improvement."

Plumbers hold key to pipeline's cost

WASHINGTON — Investigators claim that $1.5 billion were wasted building the Alaska pipeline. You are probably asking, "Where did the money go?"

To find out, I spoke to Stanton Carruthers, my plumber.

Stanton wasn't surprised at the overrun since he's had similar ones fixing the pipes in our house. Although he didn't work on the pipeline himself, he has some good ideas why the Alaska pipeline cost so much to install.

"I figure a billion of the overrun went for labor," Stanton said. "It's not easy to get a plumber to make a house call in Alaska. Then there was the pipe. The cost of pipe is going up every day, and probably the people who bid on the job didn't take this into consideration at the time. Then, of course, there were the washers. You have to have a lot of washers on a pipe 800 miles long."

"It sounds like one of your jobs," I said.

"Well, there's not much difference in building a pipeline and installing plumbing in someone's house. You have to expect an overrun or the plumber wouldn't make a profit. The guy who got the Alaska contract also forgot to include the joints in the pipe. Joints really add up, particularly if you have to thread them before you join them."

"I guess you do have to have joints in an 800-mile pipeline. You would have thought the plumber would know he needed joints."

"You only find this out after you start the job. Remember that sink I installed for you?"

"The one you said would cost $200 and wound up costing me $500?"

"That's the one. Well, what happened was after we installed the sink and the pipe we forgot to hook it up to the main water line."

"I remember that," I said. "I had to shave without water for a week. I cut up my face pretty bad."

"That can happen. So what we did was tear out the installation, drill a hole in your wall and hook up the pipe with the water. That's why we had to charge you $300 more than we figured the job would cost."

"And something like that might have happened on the Alaska pipeline?"

"I'm sure of it. They probably got the whole thing built and then discovered it wasn't hooked up to the oil. Then they had to tear it up and begin all over again."

"They said a lot of the welding was of poor quality and the X-rays and records were forged."

"That's possible," Stanton said. "When you're working with pipe, you can do a lot of sloppy work. It's like that shower head I installed for you and it leaked all over the bathroom, and we had to come back and put in a whole new faucet system. That was faulty welding."

"Why did you charge me for it if it was faulty?"

"Who was I going to charge — the guy next door? Everyone thinks plumbers are infallible. We're human, too. We make mistakes."

"That's for sure," I said. "But the one in Alaska was a lulu."

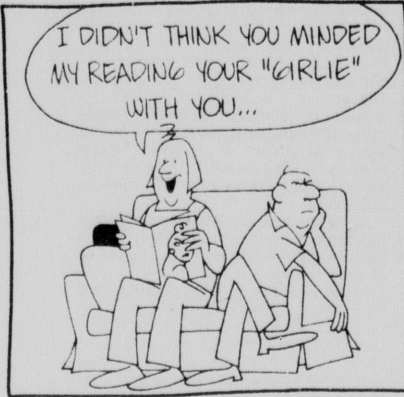

"You can say that because you didn't do the work. But if you were a plumber, you'd think differently. Look, the pipeline was supposed to cost $1 billion. Instead it cost $8 billion. Most of that probably went for overtime. The $1.5 billion that went down the drain was ordinary spillage that anyone has on a job. I'd say for a billion-dollar original bid, bringing in a pipeline for $8 billion is just about right."

"Then you don't see anything wrong with how they constructed the Alaska pipeline?"

"Even if I did, I wouldn't say so. In our profession, it's unethical to criticize another plumber's work."

South ruffs the diamond lead and if he wants to lose this contract he can do so at trick two. All he has to do is lead a trump!

He shouldn't lead this trump. The hand looks as if a cross-ruff will be needed and if you plan to cross-ruff you don't play any trumps yourself.

So, South leads his king of clubs and chucks one of dummy's spades. East wins and makes his best return — a trump.

Unlisted number defies solicitors

Dear Friends: Recently I let a telephone solicitor tell her side of the story. I was blitzed by angry readers who demanded a rebuttal. Here's what I've been getting all week long in spades — or should I say clubs?

Dear Ann: The letter from the telephone solicitor describing how she is sworn at, slammed down on, etc., burned me to a crisp. Obviously, Ann, you don't have to answer your own phone. You wouldn't know what it's like to run upstairs from the basement and then have someone try to sell you a cemetery lot. They should drop dead. — Helen In Loraine, Ohio

Dear Ann: Please tell me why a person has the right to intrude on the privacy of anyone who owns a phone? If a salesman is at your door and you'd rather not be bothered you don't have to answer. But if the salesman is on the other end of your phone you are just plain trapped. I resent it. — Peeved In Bay City

Dear Ann: Today I was home from work with a sick headache. I received three phone calls from (a) a woman who wanted to sell me awnings (I HAVE awnings), (b) a man who wanted to sell me roofing, (c) a lady who was sure I needed to have my furnace checked. I used some words I didn't know I knew. Phone solicitors have no right to ruin a person's day — and these people ruined mine. — Ticked Off In Tucson

Dear Ann: It's bad enough to have to put up with junk mail but at least I can toss that out. Phone calls are something else. I value my privacy and these giddy phone solicitors have no right to enter my home. — Furious in N.J.

Dear Ann: So they don't like to be hung up on? Well, I don't like to be taken off the top rung of a ladder when I'm painting the kitchen ceiling, nor do I enjoy getting out of the shower to tell a stranger my furniture doesn't need upholstering. What's more, I get annoyed when someone tries to sell me siding for my house — which is brick. — Mad In Manitowoc, Wisc.

Dear Ann: So we are rude when we hang up on telephone solicitors, are we? I wouldn't call a person exactly polite who enters a home uninvited, interrupts conversations with guests and breaks into family discussions. I'm so fed up I'm seriously considering having my phone taken out. — Pestered In NYC

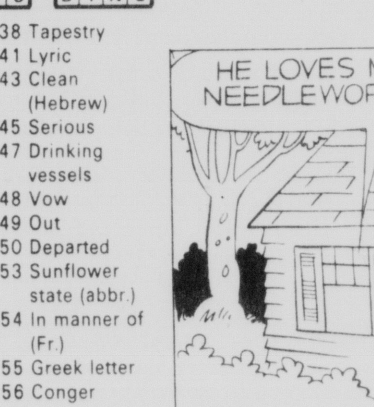

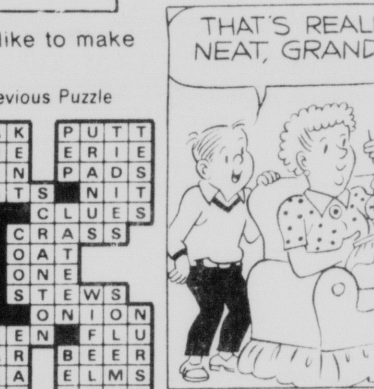

Dear Ann: Miss Solicitor doesn't like to have a telephone receiver slammed in her ear? Well, I've tried to be polite and all I get is more non-stop talk. When I say, "Thank you, I'm not interested," they go right on — and on — and on. I've never seen such guts in my life. The only way to get rid of the slob is to hang up on 'em. — No Apologies From Abilene

Dear Ann: You're going to get clobbered plenty for not giving that phone solicitor a clop in the chops (to use your phrase). I'll bet my eyeteeth you have an unlisted number and don't know what it's like to be pestered by these unbelievably persistent people. As one who has been driven up the wall, I can tell you they should be outlawed. — Peeved Aplenty In Garden City

Dear Helen, Peeved, Ticked Off, Mowed Down, Plain Mad, Pestered, No Apologies — and hundreds of others who wrote. Apparently everybody knows better than anybody. Glad I'm unlisted. Good night all.

Miss Maurine Harris

Miss Maurine Harris, 705 West Sixth, died Wednesday morning at Bothwell Hospital following a brief illness.

She was born in Pilot Grove, daughter of the late Henry Wilson and Leona Boggs Harris.

Miss Harris moved to Sedalia when her father was elected president of the Third National Bank here. She received her education in the Sedalia public schools. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, the Osage Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Sorosis, and the Knife & Fork Club.

Survivors include a nephew, H. W. Harris, 1001 South Carr; and two nieces, Mrs. Jane Harris Yount, St. Louis; and Mrs. Helen Harris Randolph, Phoenix, Ariz.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Heckart-Gillespie Colonial Chapel with the Rev. Lawrence Stewart officiating.

Palbearers will be Henry C. Salveter, Lloyd Knox, Bob McDonald, Kerry Fry, Thomas L. Yount and Alan Yount.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Fern Hatler

BARNETT — Mrs. Fern Hatler, 87, died Wednesday at the Good Shepherd Nursing Home in Versailles.

She was born May 21, 1890, at Barnett, daughter of the late John and Leonia Strong Goodman. She was married to Curtis Hatler, who died Dec. 19, 1947.

Mrs. Hatler was a member of the Barnett Christian Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Arlene Carr, Kansas City; a brother, John Goodman, Canon City, Colo.; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Yows, Amarillo, Tex.; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Kidwell-Garber Funeral Home, Versailles, with the Rev. Jimmy Kruse officiating.

Burial will be in the Versailles Cemetery.

Friends may call after noon Friday at the funeral home.

Honesty

According to Sgt. Dallam, if no one had claimed the money, it would have been returned to Watring and his friends.

I think we ought to give some praise to these kids," said the sergeant, commending the youths' actions.

Summers is the first to agree.

"It hurts when you lose that much. I didn't think there were that many honest people around. I called Danny this morning and thanked him and told him I'd give them a little reward if they came out," Summers said.

Summers said he offered them $5 apiece or some souvenirs from his stand. As for Watring and his friends, they're planning to take Summers up on his offer.

"We're going back out to the Fair tonight or in the morning," Watring said.

wouldn't change the ratio because of the SALT discussions," Gen. Masterson said, in which MIRV limits were set.

Another missile, the M-X, is currently being designed and developed as a mobile system that would be harder for an enemy to target. It is not yet operational.

"It would be pure speculation where they might be sited," Gen. Masterson said, in connection with the M-X being deployed at Whiteman.

"The terrain, soil conditions, water levels will influence the selection," he added, since the M-X will be an underground missile.

Generally, Gen. Masterson sees the future of Whiteman as stable.

"I know of no plans for increasing or broadening the mission (of the base)...or for decreasing the current mission. The 351st is alive and well and is going to stay basically as it is today."
